Facing the Future 16

A new era is emerging for the Army and Air National Guard, and with it, two new directors to lead the way: MG Robert C. Shultz, Army Guard, and Maj Gen Paul A. Weaver, Jr., Air Guard. Facing separate challenges, each one spoke to NATIONAL GUARD magazine about their roles in the future. During lengthy interviews, each leader discussed developments for the Guard which could affect every Guardsman.

The Sky Was the Limit 22

The distinguished halls of the National Guard Memorial Building in Washington came alive with soldiers and airmen of all ranks in July, as the National Guard Association of the United States honored the Air Guardsmen of the 169th, South Carolina, and 174th, New York, Tactical Fighter Wings with an on-site dedication of an F-16 Falcon model. The aircrews flew more than 2,800 missions during the Gulf War without the loss of an aircraft.

Rolling Out the Red Carpet 24

This year's National Guard Association of the United States General Conference is next month. Conference planners are putting the finishing touches on the agenda and social events. It's time for everyone to make final arrangements. Find what to expect this year in Milwaukee, as well as the latest conference developments and preparations, inside.
