16 Race Against the Calendar

With only 12 months now left to prepare, the National Guard's Y2K focus involves more than combat readiness. If the computer bug interrupts critical services, local authorities will need help. Maybe lots of it.

22 Good Deeds on Good Faith

Helping Hondurans clean up in the wake of Hurricane Mitch has been a labor of love for Air National Guardsmen and a reassurance to the residents of the impoverished Central American country. But since the immediacy of sending relief aid has passed, many Guardsmen are wondering how the humanitarian missions will hit the Guard's training pocketbook.

28 From the Makers of 'Top Gun': The Next Generation

Michigan's Air National Guard Combat Readiness Training Center in Alpena boasts the most advanced air combat training system in the United States. F-15 and F-16 pilots take note: No range needed. The next generation of air combat training uses the latest in computer technology to simulate, track and record air combat.

32 From Ohio to Inside the Beltway

It's official. The NGAUS Executive Council has hired a new executive director to replace retiring Maj. Gen. Edward J. Philbin. Retired Maj. Gen. Richard C. Alexander, former Ohio adjutant general and NGAUS president, starts his new job this month and brings a different perspective to the position.
