It is Essential

THE news from Washington this month is very encouraging for the Militia pay bill and before another issue of this magazine appears, it is likely that the bill will be reported out and passed by the House. It is expected that it will find smooth passage through the Senate.

This is all very gratifying to the friends of the bill and especially to THE NATIONAL GUARD MAGAZINE, which has unceasingly urged this measure and done no small amount toward arousing the service to the necessities and possibilities of the measure. The first agitaaroused and the federal pay measure is soon to become a law.

National Guardsmen all over the country give full credit to this publication for what it has done and unhesitatingly say that THE NATIONAL GUARD MAGAZINE ought to have the support of every true-hearted and loyal National Guardsman. From general officers and privates in the rear rank come encomiums of praise of the splendid work we are doing for the service.

THE NATIONAL GUARD MAGAZINE is the only periodical in the country with a national circulation devoted exclusively to the interests of the National Guard of all the States. It is attempting to carry information and suggestions from one state to another by publishing accounts of the achievements of all National Guardsmen. It is publishing more news and more matter of general interest to the National Guard of all the states than any of the other service papers who devote their attention exclusively to the Regular Army and Navy, in fact, THE NATIONAL GUARD MAGAZINE is the only service paper the National Guard has and if it has been successful thus far, it has been chiefly through the splendid cooperation of the officers and men of the National Guard. Now that it has won a place in the hearts of so many National Guardsmen and demonstrated what can be done for the service, we believe the time is at hand when its influences for good should be more widespread and that every National Guardsman in the service should come to look upon it as the one essential publication to help him and to interest him in his military career.

attention at all was in the pages of THE NATIONAL GUARD MAGAZINE. The successful outcome of the agitation by this periodical for greater federal appropriations led those who were in sympathy with the federal pay measure to "rally round our standard" and to assist in every way they could. The result

To those who are already subscribers and readers we extend a cordial invitation to use their influence with those who are not to join the ranks of NATIONAL GUARD MAGAZINE readers, and to those who are not subscribers and readers, we extend a cordial invitation to become a part of the great family of readers who are shaping the policies and principles of our service in such a way that it is destined in the future to be of vastly more importance to the nation than any other of the nation's martial services.
