Features

16 Gazing Ahead

Many Guardsmen are finding that predicting the future is not as easy as it used to be. The last few months of 2001 found them everywhere from international airports at home to international troublespots overseas. Only one thing is certain in the New Year: the Guard will be busy.

20 Crossing Generations

More than 57 years after they stormed the beach in Normandy, D-Day veterans of the 29th Infantry Division see their legacy carry on while visiting members of the 29th Infantry Division (Light) in Bosnia.

24 Help for Those Left Behind

As the operations tempo of Army and Air Guardsmen picks up, family readiness is an increasingly important part of mobilization. Today's family program meetings are more likely to include discussions about wills and powers of attorney than planning the unit holiday party.
